THE EDELKOORT DESIGN COLLECTION
September 6 – October 27 2013

In collaboration with the Institut Néerlandais and in conjunction with Paris Design Week 2013, Lidewij Edelkoort, one of the world's most famous trend forecasters, will exhibit her private design collection. This is the first time her unique collection is exhibited publically. The Edelkoort Design Collection offers an intriguing look at the first decade of design in the 21st century.

Edelkoort has collected design that has sparked important trends, as a new generation came to terms with technology within a post-millennium context, often exploring material values and craft.

Exhibited in private salons of the fourth floor of the Institut Néerlandais, The Edelkoort Design Collection features works by leading contemporary Dutch and international designers rarely displayed in France. The selection includes Pump It Up, the graduate project by Nacho Carbonell (Spain), a natural pigment edition of Clay furniture by Maarten Baas (the Netherlands), a charred baby grand piano, the first in a series by the same designer for his famous Smoke collection, the first hand-blown Glassworks by Dick van Hoff (the Netherlands), an TransPlastic armchair by Fernando & Humberto Campana (Brazil), works from the series Farm by Studio Job (the Netherlands) and 7 Pots / 3 Centuries / 2 Materials by Hella Jongerius (the Netherlands).

Lidewij Edelkoort is arguably the world's most famous trend forecaster. Her company Trend Union produces trend books which are used by strategists, designers and marketers at brands from Armani to Zegna in all price-point markets from Zara to Prada. Her forecasts outline the concepts that will be important for the seasons to come in industries as diverse as fashion, textiles, design, interiors, architecture, food, luxury, technology and transport.

As the former Chairwoman of the Design Academy Eindhoven (1998-2008), founder of the Designhuis and one of Icon magazine's 20 Most Influential People in Design, Edelkoort has become an important patron of the design industry and innovative design education. She has received several important awards, including the 2012 Prins Bernhard Cultuurfonds Prijs. Since its inception in 2011, TrendTablet.com, Edelkoort's online platform for following the evolution of trends, has developed an international following.

The Institut Néerlandais

Founded in 1957, the Institut Néerlandais is one of Paris' most established cultural centres. The institute organizes multiple cultural events throughout the year: exhibitions, concerts, film screenings, conferences, workshops, debates, literary presentations and evenings about dance and theatre. As a podium for the Netherlands' culture in France, and as both a venue and platform for French-Dutch cultural exchange, the Institut Néerlandais plays an important intermediary role between for artists and organisations in France and the Netherlands. In addition to these functions, the institute teaches Dutch to more than 500 French students each year.

Paris Design Week

Paris Design Week (September 9 – 15, 2013) is a free-ranging festival of events aimed at design lovers and trade professionals from France and abroad. Now in its third year, the seven-day programme brings together more than 180 venues: showrooms, concept stores, studios, galleries, cultural institutions, hotels and restaurants. Scheduled as a continuation of the MAISON&OBJET fair, Paris Design Week is a cultural and commercial event that offers editors and retailers an opportunity to release home products and collections in the market following their press launch earlier in the year. Paris Design Weeks goal is to celebrate design and share emerging trends with its local and international audience in the French cultural capital.
